New Testament Conversion vs. Apostasy

When the Apostle John received and wrote the visions that became the book of Revelation, he was probably the only surviving original member of the Twelve, and yet he was in prison. Alonzo Gaskill notes that at that same time: "many, like the Gnostics, were cropping up claiming authority (and winning many converts)" (Revelation, up). In chapters 2 and 3, John the Revelator lists the weaknesses that had befallen early branches of the Church. The quality of their conversion was a major problem that contributed to the apostasy that was well underway. They do not sound that different than our problem with commitment to the gospel.

1. Succumbing to pagan influences (including materialism)
2. Denying Christianity because of social persecution
3. Following false teachings
4. Believing false doctrines
5. "A wishy-washy commitment to the Gospel" (ibid).
6. A loss of their initial conversion to the gospel or love of Jesus

Religious Conversion

Etymology of “conversion”:

From the Latin conversionem – a noun of action, "a turning round, revolving; alteration, change"

Formal Conversion Processes of Various Non-Christian Faiths

Islam:

All that is required to convert (or revert, as is said) is a simple, formal declaration of faith

- “Revert” - belief that everyone is Muslim at birth – i.e., innocent and pure - but parents’ or society’s teaching cause them to deviate
- Does not need to be witnessed
- This is not to be done lightly, and you are expected to practice Islam for the rest of your life
- Sins are forgiven at the time of the declaration
- Continued study and learning are required
- Beliefs that need to be accepted (partial):
  - the Holy Quran is the literal word of God, revealed by Him.
  - the Judgment Day (Resurrection Day) is true and will come.
  - One must believe in the prophets that God sent and the books He revealed, and in His angels
  - No worship of anything nor anyone except God.
  - Mohammed is the Seal of the Prophets (last prophet); no prophets after Mohammed.
- Belief in and practice of the “five pillars of Islam”:
  - Profession of faith
  - Prayer
  - Almsgiving
  - Fasting (especially during Ramadan)
  - Pilgrimage
- Apostasy from Islam (including conversion to another religion) is punishable by death

Judaism:

The procedure and requirements for conversion depend on the sponsoring denomination.

Conservative and Orthodox Jews require:

- a determination to convert even after efforts to deter conversion (non-Jews don't need to become Jews to inherit the World to Come as long as they obey the seven Noachide Laws)
- the potential convert be instructed about how to live as a Jew (this is significant study)
- undergo kabbalat ol mitzvot (agreement to do the commandments)
- mila (circumcision for men – actual or symbolic)
- tevilah (immersion in a ritual bath)
- that the procedure be supervised by a Beit Din [court] of three people.

The Reform movement requires:

- that the potential convert learn and agree to observe the commandments (Reform standards)
- participate publicly in the community
- they do not require circumcision or the ritual bath

People who leave Judaism and convert to another faith are shunned by Orthodox communities (including their own families).

Conversion in Christianity

Definition (adapted from Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Bible Dictionary):

- It denotes changing one's views, in a conscious acceptance of the will of God
  - Acts 3:19 – Repent ye therefore, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out....
  - 2 Cor. 5:17 – we become new creatures in Christ
- Baptism is often, but not always, required to join a denomination. Receipt of the gift of (or baptism with) the Holy Spirit is a part of conversion, but the process of receiving the Holy Spirit varies by denomination.
- The restored Church of Jesus Christ adds that if followed by continued faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, repentance, and keeping commandments, conversion will become complete and will change a natural man into a sanctified, born again, purified person.

Jesus Christ implied that conversion is not something immediately achieved as a follower of Christ: In Luke 22:32, He told Peter, "When thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren."

Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints:

Prospective members must receive lessons from missionaries and are interviewed to ensure they are prepared for baptism. Details can be found in the church General Handbook. The process need not take a significant amount of time.

Protestant Christianity:

In general, what is required for baptism is affirmation of the Apostles' Creed - which is basically a summary of core Christian doctrine.

To Protestants, conversion means "coming to faith." This is usually accompanied by the "born again" or "change of heart" experience – a person is indwelt by the Holy Spirit. The general belief is that once you have been saved, you remain saved. Salvation is based on God's righteousness, not our own. There is nothing we can do to qualify for it; therefore, there is nothing we can do to disqualify ourselves from it. The natural man is dead once you're saved – there is no more natural man to "put off."

What Latter-day Saints think of as on-going conversion, sanctification, or "becoming," Protestants call discipleship or spiritual formation. This is the process by which one is conformed to the image of the Son and is transformed by the renewal of one's mind. This definitely is important and is a natural outcome of the born-again change of heart. The Brad Wilcox concept of "learning heaven" is very much in line with this thinking on discipleship.

The Protestant view of the process is:

Faith → Saved → Works/Perseverance or sometimes

Saved → Faith → Works/Perseverance

The Protestant view of the Catholic and Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints doctrine as typically: Faith → Works → Saved → Enduring to the end/Perseverance

Catholicism:

Those wishing to become Catholic enter a process that is known as RCIA (Rite of Christian Initiation for Adults) to receive the Sacraments of Initiation: Baptism, Confirmation, and Holy Communion. Typically, but not always, it requires a course of study of at least 6-8 months, and new converts are usually baptized at the Easter Vigil service. Most converts to Catholicism from other Christian faiths are not rebaptized; exceptions include denominations (such as LDS) whose baptisms are considered theologically invalid by Catholicism.

After baptism, as a general rule, active participation includes attendance at Mass each Sunday and holy day of obligation; personal prayer; confession of serious sins at least once a year; assent to Catholic doctrine, moral and social teaching; a continuing effort to grow in one's understanding and practice of the faith; and a contribution of time, talent and financial support to the parish and to those in need. ### Apostles' Creed:

I believe in God, the Father almighty, creator of heaven and earth.
I believe in Jesus Christ, his only Son, our Lord,
who was conceived by the Holy Spirit and born of the virgin Mary.
He suffered under Pontius Pilate,
was crucified, died, and was buried;
he descended to hell.
The third day he rose again from the dead.
He ascended to heaven and is seated at the right hand of God the Father almighty.
From there he will come to judge the living and the dead.
I believe in the Holy Spirit,
the holy catholic* church,
the communion of saints,
the forgiveness of sins,
the resurrection of the body,
and the life everlasting. Amen.

- 2 Ne 31:19:20 – baptism and receiving the Holy Ghost are not enough to ensure salvation: *after ye have gotten into this strait and narrow path, I would ask if all is done? Behold, I say unto you, Nay... Wherefore, ye must press forward with a steadfastness in Christ, having a perfect brightness of hope, and a love of God and of all men. - D&C 22 – converts must be baptized by authority, even if previously baptized in another Christian denomination

General Authority Thought from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints

- Elder David A. Bednar discussed the difference between testimony and conversion:
 “Conversion is an enlarging, a deepening, and a broadening of the undergirding base of testimony. It is the result of revelation from God, accompanied by individual repentance, obedience, and diligence... Conversion is an offering of self, of love, and of loyalty we give to God in gratitude for the gift of testimony.”

- Elder Bednar also taught that continual immersion in gospel study and practice are required for true conversion: "...you and I are born again as we are absorbed by and in the gospel of Jesus Christ."
- Elder Marion G. Romney on testimony and conversion: "It would appear that membership in the Church and conversion are not necessarily synonymous. Being converted, as we are here using the term, and having a testimony are not necessarily the same either. A testimony comes when the Holy Ghost gives the earnest seeker a witness of truth. A moving testimony vitalizes faith; that is, it induces repentance and obedience to the commandments. Conversion, on the other hand, is the fruit of, or the reward for, repentance and obedience."
- Dallin H. Oaks on conversion being a process: "Jesus' challenge shows that the conversion He required for those who would enter the kingdom of heaven (see Matt. 18:3) was far more than just being converted to testify to the truthfulness of the gospel. To testify is to know and to declare. The gospel challenges us to be "converted," which requires us to do and to become... This spotless and perfected state will result from a steady succession of covenants, ordinances, and actions, an accumulation of right choices, and from continuing repentance."
- Elder Neal A. Maxwell taught that true conversion takes time: ...an individual "heareth the word" with "joy," "understandeth it," "beareth fruit," and "endureth," and finally learns what it is to "hunger and thirst after righteousness". It is "a mighty change". Conversion basically represents the transformation from the "natural man" to becoming the "man of Christ". It is a labor which takes more than an afternoon.
- Elder Michael T. Ringwood: "The good news of the gospel of Jesus Christ is that the desires of our hearts can be transformed and our motives can be educated and refined. When we are baptized into the true fold of God, we begin the process of becoming new creatures..."
- Elder Russell M. Nelson: "Repentance is conversion! A repentant soul is a converted soul, and a converted soul is a repentant soul."
